These accomplishments have earned him a total of 85 AQHA awards, including three prestigious Gold Century Awards and the coveted AQHA Performance Medal, firmly establishing him as one of the most decorated and versatile horses in the Australian Quarter Horse community.

Jerry was far more than just Liz's accomplished show horse—he became a true ambassador for the Australian Quarter Horse industry. His exceptional trainability, calm temperament, and versatility helped showcase the Quarter Horse's suitability across a wide range of disciplines. Jerry's well-rounded education and willing nature saw him selected as a pool horse for the Youth World Cup, where the team fortunate enough to draw him gained a clear advantage. Further demonstrating his adaptability, Jerry was also chosen by renowned equestrian Lyn Palm to participate in the very first Western Dressage demonstration at Equitana, helping to introduce and promote this emerging discipline to a wider audience. His contributions extended well beyond the show ring, leaving a lasting impact on the broader equestrian community.

Jerry was not only a remarkable athlete but also an exceptionally intelligent horse with
